THE POLICY OF THE ADMINISTRATION THE PRESIDENT AND RECONSTRUCTION.

The friends and neighbors of Secretary Seward on Friday last availed themselves of the opertunity afforded by his return to his home hands have no pay him a visit of congratulation. In 1714 to an address of welcome from Rev. Dr. Hawley, Mr. Seward spoke freely and lulived in atlend a fairs, especially of the President and the policy of reconstruction. We quote the leading passages of his speech: THE PLAN OF RECONSTRUCTION.

THE PLAN OF BEFONSTRUCTION.

* We are continually hearing debates concerning the origin and antherity of the plan of restoration. New converts. North and South, coil it the President's plan. All speak of it as lift were a new and recent development. On the contrary, we now see that it is not specially andrew Johnson's plan, nor even a new plan in any respect. It is the plan which abrupply yet distinctly effered itself to the last Administration, at the rement I have before recalled, when the work of restoration was to begin—it the mement when, although by the world unperceived, it did begin, and it is the only plan which thus sea-onably presented itself, and therefore is the only posible plan which then and ever afterward could be adopted. The plan of reconciliation we are pursuing lasgiven us two great national advances in this purgues of menal and political clevation, which are new to be made fast and drmly fixed. First, excures a voluntary abolition of slavery by every state which has engaged in insurrection; and secondly, it must secure and does secure an effectual adoption by the late slave States themselves of the amendment of the Federal Constitution, which declares that neither slavery nor invelnitary servitude, except for crime, shall ever hereafter exist in any part of the initial Stotes. Applause.] The people who have so studdly adhered to the true path of bemoerate progress and civilization through all the reductions of peace, and through so many difficulties and at such teafful cost in war, will now have new ladnourments and encourage.

A number of peace and ordinance warrants were disposed of.

ARTERICAL INCIDATION —M. Dabry. French Consul at Han Kego, in China, has just published an interesting paper in the Bulletin de la Societe d'Aclimatation on the process employed by the Chinese in hatching eggs artificially. The piaces where this trade la practiced are called Pao, jung; each consists of a mud hut, three yards in height, exclusive of the roof made of tiels: the inside of the hut measures eight by foor, and its entrance is situated due west; the northeast wind is provided against by a layer of strew applied to the wail, the door is mane of planks, and measures one yard by two, lighth's redmitted through four epertures in the roof. Within there are eighteen brick stowes, two feet and a half high, along the wall and close to cach other. Each of these stowes apports a large earthenware dish, sunk into the laftkwork and just above the the place; and inside this dish there is a basket of nearly the same shape, resting on a layer of ashes about two inches and a half deep. It is in this basket the eggs to be batched, 1 2D in number, are arranged in three layers, and the whole covered with a cane lid about half an luch thick. Nine of the stoves are lighted at a time, but only eight have eggs, the ninth being intended to regulate the temperature of the room, which must be maintained the same throughout. The embustible employed is charcosl and the temperature in the basket never exceeds is degrees centigrade. The eggs are shifted five times in the cornse of twenty-four hours, viz: four times during the day and once during the night, the upper layer going to the bottom, and the bottom becoming the middle one. On the fifth day a small hole is plerced through the docr, and by the pencil of light penetrating through it, each egg is examited in order to ascertain which of them are in course of incubation. On the twelfth day the eggs are taken out of the baskets and arranged on shelves above the stov the sapek being 150th part of a france is the first ray of light we have had on two very important subjects.

First. Was there harmony in the national capitol, and especially were the two greatest statemen therein. President Johnson and Secretary Seward, united in regard to the policy being pursued by the Chief Excentive, both as reserted the internal and foreign relations. Of this there seems to be no doubt. And not only does the most cordial and social intimacy exist tetween these entirent men, but the entire cabinet being reviewed by the speaker, were universally indonesed. It is wise not to be overheavy in accepting this report as positively indicating the presence of the terrible pestilence in our midst; but it is also wise to take warning, at d, in view of the possibility of so immediate a danger, to insist upon the introduction of the most thorough sanitary measures. If the clother is in Brooklyn, New York cannot hepe to escape its fearful visitation. After the devastation, the havor, the sorrow of the civil war that has wasted our country, it would be dreadful to meet at the threshold of peace another sconrac even more destructive and pitiless, to afflict us with another period of horrors. Let no pains be spared to provide against such a calamity by the most complete and right sanitary regulations, that if the hideons visitor must come, its stay may be brief and its victless lew.—New York Times. A Faville Broams? —United States Detective Cook, of Parkersburg, reached this city early vecterday morning on the steamer New State, having in charge a feurale charper, whose name and place of residuce he was numble to ascertain. The woman is charged with swindling Federal citivers, and it is said she has been married to four different military officers within the last three months. The first she married near Gallipolis, he was a young man who had just been mustered cut of the service, and had between one thousand and twelve hundred dollars in greenbacks. About a week after they were married, the young wife alleged to have received a letter from her parents, requesting her to come home. She pretended to leave to home, but before her departure she managed to secure the greater portion of her husband's WHAT IS SALERATUS? - Wood is burnt to ashes What is Saleratus?—Wood is burnt to ashes are lixivated, lev is the result. The bankers to-day resolutely refused to alvance a single dollar on grain money, unless accompaned by thisping bills, and even then it was difficult to obtain the necessary accommodations. The rate of discount remains steady at 10 per annum.

When emulation in display exists in the dif-ferent classes of society, it is to be feared that the end will come only by general bankruptey and ruin. Where money is regarded and sought only for the gratification of extravagant tastes, and used to incite rivalry in display, the results must be disastreus; and when people are estimated merely according to their exhibi-tion of wealth, and not for personal excellence or intelligence, the tone of social hie must ra-lify deteriorate.

It is time for reform in this matter. In view of the dangers which menace as from this cates, in view of duty as the stewards of God, and in view of the influence which the rich have upon the community, we call upon men of wealth, and especially Christian men, to set the example of victous economy to the middle and power classes, and to make a decided effort to stem the tide of extravagance and love of display which is sweeping over the land.

A NEGEO SOLDIERONA RAMPAGE.—Yesterday afternoon, about one o'clock, a company of negro soldiers came up the river, on their way from Texas, North. They were drunk, and very disorderly at the river, and erested some disturbance on the wharf boat. After the company passed up Main street, en rone to the Evansville and Crawfordsville Railroad depot, one of these dusky sons of Marseame marching through the city with a large revolver in his hand, cocked, using very abusive language, and hnnting for Copperheads. We pitted the poor cuse, for he did not find one. No dunbt he would have shot any person, if there had been any opposition to his dastardly acts. Such acts as this, in a quiet and peaceable city like this, and a place where the people have ever been loyal to the old flag, and liberal to Union soldiers to a fault, call for more than a passing notice. Negro soldiers are becoming—are aintended.

YANKEES INVITED TO ALARAMA.—The North Alabemian, jublished at Tascumbla, with great indignation denies the statement in a New York paper, that no Northern man's life is safe in that region outside of the garrisoned towns, and declares "that the people of North Alabams want several thousand emigrants to come among them to settle—men of small capital, farmers, biscksmiths, wagon-makers, carpenters, bricks-masons, men of all trades, who will settle down, cultivate the lands as they should be cultivated, and brild machine shops and print polididings in the place of those burned and destroyed by the soldiers." "It is true," continues that journal, "we are still sore on Some subjects, and cannot be expected to feel as friendly to Northern men who come among us as we could have felt they ears ago, but as to a Northern man's life not being safe, or his property respected, simply because he happened to be a Yankee, that's all stoff, that no man acmissived, with the Southern people will believe."

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1865. THE CONFEDERATE DEBT .- There has been tome discussion of the question as to the Dayment of the Confederate debt by the several regenerated Southern States. Some have sup-posed that debt to be binding in honor, and that the Southern people ought to pay it. We don't believe it is. We don't believe they are in honor bound to pay it, or that they ought to be made to pay it, or that they ever will pay it. If the politicians who contracted the debts wish to pay them, why let them do it. If they want the pleasure of it, let them have it. Nobody will object to their doing so. But what they will ever pay voluntarily will never suffice to keep the bones of a chicken from protruding through its skin. They don't belong to the paying class. They are the receivers-not payers. It is very cool for those who forced war upon the country and who forced the people into the war to turn round and ask these same people to foot the bills which the conspirators tracted-very. Were the loans in question ever authorized by the Southern people? Did ever indorse them? Were they ever submitted to them? But we may be told that the people created the late Confederate Gov ernment, and the Confederate Governed the debts. That is a mistake, a grand, radical mistake. They never created that Government. It was never submitted to them for ratification or rejection. Not one of the accession ordinances of the Gulf States was ever passed upon by the voters of those States -a most extraordinary tact, which the future historian, in reviewing the late struggle, will not fall to notice and to attach to it the importnce which it deserves. Nobody authorized the Montgomery Convention to create a government, and nobody except the engaged in the work expected that it would attempt to do ea. It was a gross and unjustifiable and monstrous usurpation. All that the members of that body had any right, or color of right, to do was to consult together and report people for their action in the premises. But-!-- the moment they met they went forthwith to creating a 10w government, without so much as asking the people whether they wanted any new government or not. The conspira-tors at once lost eight of and completely ignored subsequently at a single step in the revolutionary proceedings that followed. If they had felt secure, as they pretended, that the people would have indorsed their work, did they not submit it to them?

They were afraid of the "sober, second thoughts of the people, afraid that, if they gave them

ime for consideration and reflection, they would ard of the die, and plunging headlong into the awning abyse that gaped wide as the mouth of perdition beneath them. The only chance of the conspirators lay, they judged, and the indged rightly, in not giving the people time or all mell high over their heads, and in opposicide against risking everything upon the haz

tion to the clear judgment of the masses The Montgomery Convention drew up no bill of indictment against the Government of the Inited States. It made out no list of grievances. It did not appeal to the impartial judgment of mankind It did not lay its acts before the peo ple, in whose name it professed to be engaged wasn't a thinking man in all the Southern States, who wasn't crazy, who did not feel that the Montgom ry Convent on-and it was that body which set the ball of revolution in motion-did not transcend what it had any right or authority to do. In fact, it had right or sutherity to do anything more than consult upon the exigency of the hour, and it did not derive the right even to do this from the people. The people never elected one ported to the people what they had done, or seked the people what they should do or ought to do! The people were not represented in that body. It represented itself and the politicians only—the very fellows who made the debta, and who now coolly ask the people whom they dire destruction to pay them. That which was egun in a villainous and violent usurpation of the rights of the people was continued by vioinfamone conscription laws of the Richmond oligarchy? Were they submitted to the people? people have alled up the ranks of the Richmond armies voluntarily, think you? If so, why were those conscription laws resorted to? We need not ask the question of any intelligent Southern man. Every such man knows that those armies would not have been filled without those Draconian laws which dragged forced them into the service of the Richmond despotism, and that, without such re-enforcement, the war would have come to an end from sheer inanition, want of men to carry it on, long before it reached the tremendous proportions which it subsequently sumed. After the first flashes were over when the people of the South began to taste in cornect the bitterness of war, when its leaders began to shoot men by the score for refusing longer to sustain it, if the question of contracting debts to carry it on had been submitted to and they had been left perfectly free to decide upon it. does any man in his senses anppose that they would have authorized the measure or would nave sustained it? The subsequent action of the Legislatures in assuming or guartecing the payment of the Confederate debt was elmply a part of the same system of force and terror that brought on the war at first. The people never ratified that action. They could not do it. There were no voting people left out of the armies except the office-holders to ratify or reject anything, and the oligarchy would not have submitted anything to them if there had been. The Southern people never authorized the pledged their honor to pay them, never ought only persons whose honor is so pledged are the tainly ought to pay the "Confederate loan," redeem the 'Confederate currency,' and compensate everybody who has been ruined or lost moncy by the Confederate war! Walk up, gentlemen, walk up to the captain's office and General Palmer has made a long reply to Governor Bramlette. It is the Governor's turn next.—Louiseille Democrat. We are confident that Gov. Bramlette will ot respond to Gen. Palmer's letter, addressed to the "Editors of the Union Press," which we reproduced in our columns yesterday morning.

The Governor would violate the proprieties of his official station were he to engage in a newspaper controversy with Gen. Palmer, or any one disc. The previous publication of General Palmer's letter, addressed to the Secretary of Sharkey as United States Senator for the short War, which was calculated, we think, to impress the public with an erroneous idea of the league for the long term. We think it ought to be repealed because the circumstances existing at the time of its enactment were entirely different from what they are now, but we have no idea that it will be before the organization of the next Congress, and hence we have urged the great importance to the South of electing those men, and those only, who can and will take it. If this be disregarded and Congressional Districts shall return men who cannot take the oath, said dis tricts will be a'most certain, in our judgment, to go unrepresented.

Nobody that we know of proposes "to put the political power of this country into the hands of those who are fresh from the work of tablished by the facts.

All that the Administration and conservative men propose is to restore to elvil rights those in the South who give evidence of their return to their allegiance as good and nest citizens of the United States, and to admit to their seats in Congress thoroughly ioval der the influence of the sky, which is continually prompted to varying thoughts, will indulge in a superfluity of ideas, and deat with them all superficially; more volatile than reflective, it can surer have a constant love for a nived constitution. Once resolved to act, the intention of the North, sustained by reason alone, will outlet the enthusiasm of the South. In physical conrage the two are equal, but the North will preveil through its habits of labor, of method, and its inexorable perseverance."

But we have time and space only to indicate the line of illustration, which extends from Climate to Emigration, to the Chauces in Political Institutions, to the Social History of Egypt, to the Sujerstitions of Asia, to the lufficance of representatives from the Southern States who may be chosen by thoroughly loyal constituthe heats of freedom, which has been established and frankly and almost universally accepted by the Southern people. Isn't this reasonable, just, and fair? Isn't it constitu-Won't it tend powerfully to restore the Union to its old time prestige or something more? And isn't that what Union men everywhere Wasn't the war all about that?

The admission of loval Southern representatives and the restoration of civil government to the South will not "put the political power of this country into the hands of those who are fresh from the work of rebellion" at all. I nat power will still remain in the hands of the eval States, of those that never were in revolt. the loval States will still have a very large ma ority npon joint ballot of the two houses of lor gress after every one of those lately in revolt shall have been restored, and an immense opular majority in a Presidential election, ifwhich God forbid-there should ever again be was districted by such a before the nation.

There will be no danger in restoring civil this and representative government to the South. The Southern people have bad enough No demagogues will ever be able to fool or drive them into another revolt against the covernment. So far as elections have been held, the voters as a general rule have chosen men to office who have always been opposed to ecession, and always friends to the Union and the Constitution, and who, besides, have adopted nureservedly the free basis and are engaged carrying it into practical effect.

We trust therefore that the "delegation in Congress" from Massachnestts, and the "North," will not ungraciously refuse admission into Congress to proper representatives from the Southern States, or refuse civil rights and self-government to the Southern people, or insist upon keeping np military evernments in those States, and thus entail a heavy and needless expense upon the national government, and prepense upon the national government, and pre-vent the growth of those fraternal feelings and social and political ligaments which were once in the earlier and better days of the Republic, and may be again, so potent in binding it to-gether and making it indeed one country. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup Bev. Svi.vavra Connithus writes in the B ston Chris-tian Fr. man: We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be sood—particularly for infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by givi an infant troubled with colie pains, quiet sleep, and it parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can apociate these blessing. There is an article which was prfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep whi affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the list crub awakes as "bright as a buttou." And during the ocess of teetbing its value is incalculable. We have equently heard mothers say they would not be will

THE TRAGEDY ON MAIN STREET.-Jacob V. is the name of the German who was killed at his beer-caloon, on Main street between Shelby and Campbell streets, night before last. He was aged about fifty-five years, and highly esteemed by his acquaintances as an his esceable, unoffending citizen. Coroner J. C. Gill held an examination over the body, and scertained that Vonau was shot by Emil Hartman, about half-past eight o'clock Thursday vening, the ball taking effect in the center of his breast, from which he died in thirty minties. Ma. Vonan, wife of the deceased, who was the only witness to the quarrel which led to the fatal shooting, made the following statement before the Coroner: "About half-past into her house, and the other man went behind be counter to draw some beer; her husband remonstrated with him about it, saying that he was the boss there, and if they wanted boer they must ask him for it. The man said, "What's the difference whether I draw it myself or you draw it. Her husband said it made a great difference; that he did not allow such conduct in his house, and that he (the man) must go from behind the counter. Herhusband then drev some beer ope or two glasses, I torget which), and said her husband wanted to, or was soing to,

Palmer, Communally, Liepartment of Kentucky, Louisintle, Ky.: Sin: I have the honor to forward to you the oil wing copy of a report in your case by Marra General George H. Thomas, commanding Military Division of Tennessee:

"Mashington City, Oct. 18, 1865.

"Respectfully returned to the Hon. Secretary of War, after carefully considering the complifies of the Hon. Gireu Clay Smith and Governor Bramlette of Kentucky, against Majordeneral J. M. Palmer, and his reply, together with the rejoinder of Mr. Smith. I am satisfied that Mr. Smith in his complete and rejoinder confirms the conclusion, to which one would naturally arrive on reading the reply of Gen. Palmer, that he has administered the affairs of his department; with justice and fidelity, and looking only to the literasts of the Government of the United States and State of Kentucky. I, therefore, respectfully, but carnestly recommend that he be retained in his command.
"As additional reasons for my recommendation, I respectfully enclose the letter of commendation, I respectfully enclose the letter to me of October 7th, and Gen. Palmer's letter to me of October 1t, marked respectfully your obedient aer.
